Wyoming Judge rules Sorority Girls suing their university for allowing a transgender man to live in their sorority house may not have any anonymity in their lawsuit and must use their real names- despite the threats of violence the girls face from trans activists.

7 girls are suing the Kappa Kappa Sorority at the University of Wyoming over fears for their safety in their sorority house. Members have complained that the transgender male repeatedly sexually exposed himself and showed arousal while watching the girls in the house.

Why are transwomen's fears of male violence in bathrooms justified, but women's fears of male violence in bathrooms are mocked and derided as mean, phobic, and bigoted?

Maybe local frat houses could provide security for the sorority. Left wing trans activists vs Wyoming football team frat house. Great practice for the O linemen.

We need to bring back insane asylums. If someone persists in asserting they are something they are not, lock them up for society's sake.

We have a crazy people validation problem.

When I was in college, Greek life on campus was exclusive. Members were invited to join only after a long vetting process. Some did not make the cut. That said, why is there any question in this case? If this man wasn't invited to join, he shouldn't be allowed in. What's missing?
